

Orgonite and geopathic stress

Orgonite and dowsing

- Orgonite is a valuable tool in relieving geopathic stress
- Orgonite other than mere copper rods or other traditional tools transmutes negative energy lines and infuses them with positive energy
- Orgonite earth pipes are the most effective tool in addressing negative energy lines.

These are the observations of our friend Tino Puthego:

Orgonite on geopathic stress lines

"After gifting a few thousand orgonite TBs, some near cell towers, others to people that invariably went into minor detoxes, I learnt how to dowse using angle rods from a reputed water dowser. Took me a day. I then studied geopathic stress and found I could easily dowse for it, all types including Hartmann, Curry, and other lines. I found that lines that gave off DOR could easily be turned to POR by placing even a single TB on them.

The thicker Curry lines did not respond to this treatment. Sometimes 3 TBs in a triangle did it....sometimes 6, but what worked every single time was an earthpipe....even a single one! The dowsers and geomancers that didn't know orgonite taught me to jump lines using copper pipes, and this gave me the idea to try EPs. I have so far found this to be the most powerful technique.

People feel dizzy for hours after I bust the geostress in their yards, followed by clear detox symptoms. What is interesting is the relationship between geopathic stress and orgone. No one seems to know for sure what is going on. This is what most experts agree on though; Certain animals like cats, owls, ants, most medicinal herbs, flourish on geopathic stress. Bees even increase their production of honey by a third. Oak trees prefer growing there, and bark from them to make cork floor tiles protects a bed from geostress. A pattern should be clear from this...especially that medicinal herbs grow on geostress...!

Orgonite placed in beehives also enhances honey production by a similar factor...does this mean orgonite induces geopathic stress? Is DOR geopathic stress? I have found lines of geopathic stress producing DOR, but not always. I think what's going on is that some animals and plants have learnt to transmute the DOR to POR....and since DOR is in a way accumulated orgone...i.e. it is restricted.-transmuting it is an easy way to make concentrated POR..similar to what Karl Welz says.that he makes positive orgone from DOR.

When I introduced orgonite to the water dowsers that taught me, they were quite shocked at its power to transmute lines. Previously they had just jumped the lines not transmute them to positive. They told me that almost all very sick people are usually sleeping on bad lines. I have since confirmed this by checking on my old patients, some even cancer ones. Oh., I never mentioned that health and alternative healing are hobbies of mine...and I have interacted with hundreds of patients...several on their death beds. For every claimed cure for illness, be it alternative or orthodox, from zappers to diet to cleanses to oxygen to shaman therapies, I can show you an exception both ways. If we use a thorough clean-the-whole-body approach like DrClark tried to do, we see a quick reduction of symptoms, but if the patients environment has toxins or there is severe geopathic stress the illness returns.

If the geostress is very heavy, even zapping continuously for a year doesn't help that much. If there is severe emotional 'armour' and emotional plague....after the most effective cure, the patiënt makes themselves sick again a few years down the line. Some are cured completely by a single TB. Since I followed up patients up to 5 years later, I was always confused at the long term results...after I studied Reich's work extensively it made much more sense. I have heard of chemotherapy success after removal of severe geopathic stress, much as we discourage chemo. This is why I realize now that I actually do not know much about anything, and that it is not worth arguing with people about things one doesn't understand fully. If we discussed how to land an aeroplane in a crosswind though, here I can stand my ground. Disease and illness seems to be the result of very many factors that can differ from person to person. If one reduces a few, one regains some of their health back. Like I was taught by my ninjutsu master whilst at Uni, the enlightenment of a healer may be to discover that actually they could never heal anyone, only the patiënt can heal themselves. For now as I dowse for geopathic stress, earthpipes are my most potent ammunition.

Note that many celltowers seem to be on stress lines....usually it's the so called Benker ones...that are easily polluted by electromagnetism. Some lines can even be polluted by a bitter argument though. When we asked a worker for one of the cell companies here how they decided to site a tower exactly where it ended and not ten metres away...he responded by saying there was a "machine from France that shows (us) exactly where to put it for maximum effect".

Quite interesting.

This would suggest that gifting a celltower randomly may be enough to transmute the DOR coming from its antennae, but may be inadequate to correct the polluted lines it touches. It seems we have to place the orgonite exactly on the geostress line for it to be transmuted. I had this at my house...lines that I found 3 years later with orgonite a few metres from them, untouched, until I earthpiped them exactly, then things moved. On the other hand it would appear that geopathic stress is also necessary if medicinal herbs need it to grow. Tricky."

Tino Phuthego (Caborone, Botswana!)